

Toddler News – September 24, 2008

Hi, Parents.

In an effort to maintain better communication with all of you, I will be emailing important information as necessary.

Drop-off and pick-up can be busy times for all of us and sometimes, managing more than a quick word or two can be difficult. Please know that you can reach me via email or by phone if and when you ever have questions, concerns or just want to touch base.

Some of you with older children at PMS are already familiar with Pizza Day, which takes place on the last day of each week (usually Fridays). We would like to include the Toddlers in this if there is enough interest. On Pizza Day your child would not need to bring a lunch but would instead bring $2.00 for pizza, which the school has delivered from Papa John's. We will begin this Friday, September 26th. If your child will be participating in Pizza Day, please let us know prior to Friday. Additionally, while it's not necessary, feel free to send a fruit with your child as a healthy supplement to his/her pizza lunch.

Many of you have asked questions about the purpose of home visits. Please do not feel as though I am coming to your home to be entertained or pass judgment in any way.

Home visits are strictly about the Child and are a wonderful opportunity for me to spend time with each of your children in his/her element: to see their bedrooms, meet the family pets and generally get to know your child just a little bit better. The Montessori Toddler Environment strives to be an extension of the home and by experiencing for myself where each child spends most of his/her time, I hope to better accommodate for each of them at school. Also, children just think it's pretty cool to have their teacher come to their house!

That's the news for now. I have attached the updated snack list and as always, thank you very much for your cooperation.

Sincerely,
Siobain
